Family Violence Initiative

Interdepartmental Reporting Framework

June 1998

This Reporting Framework was drafted by the Reporting Framework Working Group of the Interdepartmental Evaluation Working Group (IEWG), Family Violence Initiative. The group consisted of Jerzy Jarmasz (chair) SPRD-Health Canada, Satish Seetharam, SPRD-Health Canada, Carol MacLeod, Interdepatmental Family Violence Initiative Coordination-Health Canada, Michel Laurendeau, Treasury Board Secretariat, Patricia Streich, Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Alyson MacLean, Justice Canada.

Family Violence Initiative Interdepartmental Reporting Framework

Purpose of Reporting Framework

Building on the Family Violence Initiative Interdepartmental Accountability Framework, this document details the performance measurement approach for activities undertaken by departments, agencies and Crown corporations participating in the Family Violence Initiative. The document also develops an Initiative-wide Summary Performance Indicator Table, develops a reporting and information collection system based on departmental Performance Indicator Tables to facilitate monitoring, delineates a process for overall review of activities and ways in which to assess the added value of horizontal issue management.

1. What is the Family Violence Initiative?

The Family Violence Initiative consists both of federal government activities, projects or programs carried out with new resources (hereafter referred to as "the allocation") and activities and initiatives that affect family violence prevention and reduction carried out by departments, agencies and Crown corporations with departmental resources.

At any time, the Family Violence Initiative is comprised of all activities which participating departments, agencies and Crown corporations include on the descriptive list that they transmit to Health Canada when they join the Family Violence Initiative. Appendix A shows the format for submitting this list.

Participating departments, agencies and Crown corporations will update the list annually. The initial 1997-98 list is attached to this Reporting Framework, and the updated list will be attached to the annual Interdepartmental Family Violence Initiative Report as Appendix B.

2. Objective

The objective of the Family Violence Initiative is to reduce family violence in the Canadian population, particularly as it relates to women and children. It intends to achieve this objective by:

- promoting continued public awareness of the risk factors of family violence and of the need for public involvement in responding to the problem;
- strengthening the ability of the criminal justice and housing systems to respond to the problem; and
- supporting data collection, research and evaluation efforts to identify effective interventions.

3. Performance Measurement Strategy

The FVI performance measurement strategy is three-tiered:

first, Health Canada, with the collaboration of participating departments, agencies and Crown corporations, will monitor Canadian developments related to family violence issues;

second, participating departments, agencies and Crown corporations will monitor their family violence related activities funded wholly or partly from departmental resources using distinct performance indicators established for those activities, but identifying links to Family Violence Initiative key results and performance indicators; and third, Health Canada will coordinate the overall review of activities carried out by departments, agencies and Crown corporations with the allocation, and will assess the added value of horizontal issue management.

The initiative-wide Summary Performance Indicator Table which follows provides a synopsis of the information required to measure key results including the added value of horizontal issue management. Appendix C gives the Performance Indicator Tables for each participating department which show for each department's activities the outputs, reach (target population: users, clients, co-deliverers and/or beneficiaries), outcomes (short-term effects) and key results (long-term impacts). The tables in Appendix C will be updated as required.

Summary Performance Indicator Table

Key results	Indicators	Measurement Approaches
Public awareness of family violence issues	Public support of efforts to prevent and respond to family violence	Survey public opinion on family violence issues Monitor and analyse media coverage of related issues
Reduced tolerance for family violence in society	Public willingness to report family violence as a crime	Survey public opinion on tolerance of family violence Analyse reporting gap between victimization rates and crime statistics
Reduction of occurrence of family violence	Incidence of acts of family violence	Survey public on self-reported family violence-related incidents Analyse trends in family violence incident statistics
Development and implementation of activities to reduce family violence	Resources dedicated by other levels of government and NGOs to address family violence issues Relevant policy and program development by other levels of governments, First Nations, NGOs, Professional Associations, Private Sector	Review public records and survey NGOs to identify activities and resources dedicated to family violence issues Review network information to identify relevant policy and program development

Enhanced prevention of and improved response to family violence	Adoption of proven family violence intervention models at the community level	Review network information to assess utilization of intevention models that work
	Population access to family violence prevention and treatment services	Review network information to determine public access to proven intervention approaches
Effective, efficient and coordinated federal policy development and programming related to family violence issues	An information base that assists federal government partners in addressing family violence issues	Review data collection through management information systems
	Dissemination of information/ knowledge to federal government partners	Review research agenda on family violence-related issues
		Review information exchange systems and information sharing practices among federal government partners
	Use of information by federal government partners in the development and application of policies and programs	Interview federal officials on satisfaction of information needs and data requirements
		Review legislation, policies and programs to assess concordance with recent statistics and proven intervention models
	Coordination mechanisms that meet the needs of federal departments, agencies and Crown corporations	Interview federal officials on satisfaction with coordination mechanisms

4. Performance Reporting Strategy

The Accountability Framework makes provisions for the tools and stages of the reporting cycle on the achievements of the Interdepartmental Family Violence Initiative. It describes the ways in which participating departments will be reporting and it addresses the manner in which Health Canada in cooperation with all participating departments, through the Interdepartmental Evaluation Working Group (IEWG) will ensure the integrity of the process.

The following grid shows reporting requirements for all the departments participating in the Family Violence Initiative:

Funding source	Reporting Requirements
wholly or partly funded from allocation	Update: 1. Descriptive list: revise annually to reflect activities completed, add new activities. See Appendix A. 2. Performance Indicator Table: complete/revise, date and obtain responsible manager's signature for each activity Prepare departmental input into annual Interdepartmental Family Violence Initiative Report: 1. Summary: provide general overview of results and achievements including related information from Fall Performance Reports, formal program evaluation and audit, departmental tracking systems, reports, media sources and/or interviews. 2. Narrative report: provide for each activity listed the previous year, describing the activity status and budget, its product (output), who it benefits (reach) and how it contributes to reducing family violence and how it links to the long-term impacts (key results) of the Family Violence Initiative and listing partners who contributed resources, both financial and in-kind wholly funded from departmental resources, with family violence as main objective and/or with effect on family violence	Update: 1. Descriptive list: revise annually to reflect activities completed, add new activities and, where feasible 2. Performance Indicator Table: complete/revise, date and obtain responsible manager's signature for each activity Prepare departmental input into annual Interdepartmental Family Violence Initiative Report: 1. Activity 1*: Research Project ($30K) "The Role of Sport and the Media in Domestic Violence" The purpose of this research project is to identify possible ways in which sport and the media may contribute to the incidence of family violence in Canada. It is also expected that the findings will generate recommendations for future action in this area. The University of Windsor is conducting the research in three phases designed to collect relevant data, perform a thorough analysis of the data and conduct key interviews with victims and perpetrators to gain understanding of and insight into processes, causes, impact and possible solutions to family violence. Phase I: To examine the relationship of televised hockey playoff games and the frequency of domestic violence reported to police. This is being done in nine Canadian cities covering a period of up to three years. Phase II: To perform a gendered analysis of the role that sport plays, for both females and males, in the lives of women and children who have experienced domestic abuse and men who are perpetrators of domestic abuse. Phase III: To develop an understanding of the role of televised hockey and its relationship to domestic violence in the lives of children exposed to domestic abuse. Interviews will be carried out with selected children. Contact person, telephone and fax number: Bob Pruner, Telephone: 987-2489, Fax: 997-0743	A, F	University of Windsor	1

Department of Canadian Heritage : 1997-1998
Activity 2 1996-1997 Project support to Aboriginal Women's Organizations Allocation of funds was hampered by receipt at year end. The Program cash managed $130,961 over the next two fiscal years. In 1996-97, $54,190 supported: a workshop on the impact of certain legislations on the conditions of Inuit women, a Train the Trainers project for ten Aboriginal youth on family violence prevention who, in turn, will conduct similar training for other Aboriginal youth and a pamphlet for Aboriginal youth to complement the training package. These projects are developed and managed by off-reserve Aboriginal women's organizations for the benefit of Aboriginal women and their families off-reserve. Contact person, telephone, fax and e-mail: Audrey Greyeyes, (819) 994-2121, (819) 953-2673, audrey_greyeyes@pch.gc.ca	A, B, E	No specific partnering identified	2
Activity 3: 1997-1998 Project support to Aboriginal Women's Organizations The 1997-1998 allocation was $268,033 ($215,000 plus $53,033(1996-97).The Aboriginal Women's Program expended $351,433 on family violence projects and a further $42,440 for projects in which family violence was one of the major issues addressed for a total of $393,873. Project activities included the following: 1) five projects dealt with the development, research and/or implementation of Aboriginal models for addressing family violence (of note is a model being developed in conjunction with an Aboriginal men's healing advisory group in Calgary and the pilot of an "Generational Family Healing Circle" model in eight Alberta communities); 2) five projects provided training to community workers, volunteers and Aboriginal youth, three of which used the Train the Trainer method; 3) five projects researched and/or produced culturally appropriate information for Aboriginal individuals or communities which included pamphlets and videos with facilitators' manuals; 4) a network was established in Saskatoon with inner-city service agencies to centralize services for volunteers and Aboriginal clients; 5) ten projects enabled workshops to be held on family violence issues with emphasis on awareness raising but several also addressed issues such as healing and wellness, training, youth and needs of low-income mothers; and 6) three projects involved the development of action plans or strategies for addressing family violence by Aboriginal women for their communities. These projects are developed and managed by off-reserve Aboriginal women's organizations for the benefit of Aboriginal women and their families off-reserve. Contact person, telephone, fax and e-mail: Audrey Greyeyes, (819) 994-2121, (819) 953-2673, audrey_greyeyes@pch.gc.ca	A to E	Except for the Saskatoon network, no formalized partnering undertaken. Partnering activity does occur with governments and social service agencies for information gathering and sharing, in-kind support from Aboriginal and other service agencies (e.g. use of facilities, front line workers, professionals, and the "sweat equity" of a cadre of volunteers from the Aboriginal community).	2

Activity 4: 1997-1998 Other Aboriginal Women's Program Activities The Aboriginal Women's Program is the primary source of federal funding to Aboriginal women's organizations for purposes of improving their socio-economic and political status. It enables Aboriginal women to advance their interests through the initiation of activities and projects that improve social conditions, cultural retention and preservation, economic well-being and leadership development, while maintaining cultural distinctiveness and preserving cultural identity. The three national Aboriginal women's associations (Native Women's Association of Canada, Pauktuutit Inuit Women's Association and Métis National Council of Women) are the principle partners for government on family violence issues. Family violence is a priority for all three. Many of the community-based projects are for conferences, community workshops and other research that address or assess the socio-economic conditions faced by Aboriginal women and their families and usually include family violence as an item for discussion or research. Contact person, telephone, fax and e-mail: Nancy Greenway, (819) 994-2122, (819) 953-2673, nancy_greenway@pch.gc.ca	A, B, F	N/A	4

Activity:	Relation-ship to FVI key results	Partners	Funding Category
Activity 5: Multiculturalism Program The Multiculturalism Program has a $215K/year funding allocation for family violence prevention programming for ethnic and visible minority communities, especially community members who aren't fluent in English or French. This component of federal prevention activities will complement other federal prevention activities by ensuring a message about prevention of wife, child and elder abuse reaches Canadians with limited official language fluency as well as those who grew up speaking English and French. This is a large and growing sector of the Canadian population, according to the 1996 Census, which indicates that 17% of Canadians were born in another country and approximately 10% of Canadians speak a language other than English or French at home. The Program used 1997-98 to set the stage for the next five years by: • developing a five-year action plan for public education activities in non-official languages on the themes of wife, child and elder abuse; • establishing a Multiculturalism Program Family Violence Initiative Advisory Committee to ensure success of family violence prevention activities for ethnocultural communities, composed of ethnic media and E/FSL experts, representatives of mainstream organizations that address family violence, representatives of the federal Interdepartmental Working Group on Family Violence and Status of Women Canada, and HQ and regional representatives of the Multiculturalism Program, and coordinating a very successful first meeting; • negotiating production and distribution of a special issue of Canadian Scene, a national news and information service for ethnic print media, in 20 languages to 450 ethnic print publications with a total readership of 2.7 million people;	B		1

• establishing partnerships with NGOs in Canada's three largest population and media centres (Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver). These NGO's are going to coordinate programming about wife, child and elder abuse and the implications for families in cooperation with ethnic television and radio programs across Canada; • developing a partnership with CFMT International in Toronto, the largest multilingual broadcaster in Canada, by which CFMT will contribute a multilingual PSA about family violence and its impact on families, for use by ethnic broadcasters across Canada; • initiating arrangements for production of an information kit for adult ESL teachers about having effective classroom and one-on-one discussions about wife, child and elder abuse with ESL students; • developing a plan for evaluating the short- and long-term impact of family violence prevention activities through feedback from ethnospecific service organizations, ethnic media and partner organizations.	B		1
An additional $72K was spent on family violence prevention projects that fell outside the scope of the new initiative but which support it by diversifying the Multiculturalism Program's approach to family violence. Funding was provided to: • the Child Welfare League of Canada for production of a brochure on alternatives to physical discipline for minority communities; • Deluxe Productions of Vancouver for production of a film about wife abuse; • the Women's Institute of African United Baptist Association for production of a video about violence against Black Women, • Centre des femmes de Montréal for a project on conjugal violence in a multiethnic milieu; • the Ottawa Muslim Community Circle for a project on combatting domestic violence among Muslims of the Ottawa/Carleton Region and eliminating discrimination against Muslim youth in Ottawa schools. Contact person, telephone and fax: Barbara Preston, Telephone: 994-5653, Fax: 953-7282	B		4

Activity 6*: Television Media Literacy Message The Department of Canadian Heritage, in partnership with Concerned Children Advertisers (CCA), launched in September 1997 Canada's first television media literacy message targeted to children between the ages of 4 and 8. The object of the message, entitled "Smart As You", is to provide children with the necessary tools to develop critical viewing habits. Smart As You imparts media literacy skills to young children in order to help them make balanced, informed and healthy television choices. Health Canada, through its Evaluation and Coordination Budget, provided assistance for the production of the message in recognition of the correlation that exists between media violence and family violence/violence in society. Research studies have indeed consistently indicated that potential negative effects of media violence on children result in increased levels of aggressive behaviour at home and in society; "desensitization" identified as a feeling that the world is a scarier place than it is; and a belief that violence is an effective means of resolving conflict. Contact person, telephone and fax number: Pierre Sénécal, (613) 997-7428, (613) 997-7472, pierre_senecal@pch.gc.ca	B, E	The departments of Canadian Heritage and Health Canada and the Concerned Children's Advertisers organization, which is a consortium of 21 companies (some of which are broadcasters) who believe that their ability to market and advertise their products and services to children is both a right and a responsibility.	2

HUMAN RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT CANADA
Activity:	Relation-ship to FVI key results	Partners	Funding Category
Activity 1*: New Identities for Victims in Life-Threatening Relationships: To escape life-threatening relationships, victims have tried to change their identities and those of their dependants. An important step in this process is requesting a new de-linked SIN (no computerized cross-reference). HRDC and Revenue Canada have jointly managed an ad hoc process to respond to requests from these victims. To determine the best way to manage the process and increase safety for these victims, the Interdepartmental Project Team, has held cross-country consultations with women's groups, aboriginal groups, provincial officials, front-line workers, other federal departments and victims. The results of those findings were presented to an Interdepartmental Steering Committee comprised of: Revenue Canada, the Department of Justice, Health Canada, Solicitor General of Canada, Human Resources Development Canada and Status of Women Canada. The Committee agreed that there is a need to move towards increased safety for victims in life-threatening relationships and recognized that in-depth work is required, in collaboration with other federal departments and provincial/ territorial governments, as well as service providers. The project team is now tasked with completing this work. The Steering Committee is pursuing positioning the initiative within the broader government family violence and victims of crime strategies. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Mary Chennette, (613) 957-9109, (613) 952-7105	A,B,C,D,E, F	federal departments, provincial governments, women's groups, front-line workers, victims	3

Activity 2*: Information Gathering and Dissemination The Child and Family Services Information project is a joint f/p/t initiative which focuses on the development and provision of comprehensive information on provincial and territorial child and family services and programs. Some of the products produced include: the Child Welfare in Canada report which outlines the roles and responsibilities of provincial and territorial child welfare authorities in cases of child abuse and neglect and presents available statistics on abused and neglected children as identified by child welfare authorities. It was publicly released in April 1994 and will be updated in summer 1998. The Child and Family Services Annual Statistical Report based on statistical tables previously found in the Compendium on Child and Family Services Information and the report entitled Child Welfare in Canada. The report presents data on a range of services to children and families, including protection services and adoption, with the main focus being on children in care. The next update including data for 1995-96 and 1996-97 will be released in March 1998. The Bulletin of Child and Family Services Information, which provides a summary of changes and developments in provincial/territorial programs, services and policies as well as relevant federal information. The Bulletin is issued twice a year. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail:	A	Provinces and Territories	1,3

Activity 3*: Research Gathering and dissemination, National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth (NLSCY) The National Longitudinal Survey of Children and Youth (NLSCY) is a long-term study whose primary objective is to monitor the development and well being of Canada's children as they grow from nfancy to adulthood. More specifically, the objectives of the NLSCY are to: determine the prevalence of various biological, social and economic characteristics aand risk factors among children and youth; to support Canadian undrestanding of the determinants of child development and well-being and of the pathways of their influence on child outcomes; and to provide this information to policy and program officials for use in developing effective policies and strategies to help young people live healthy, active and rewarding lives. Some of the information collected includes: relationships, childcare and school exeriences, family and custody history. At the same time, HRDC is funding a major program of research to encourage further expert analysis, such as: Class, Income and Child Outcomes, Determinants of Child Development which encompass a number of studies to look at specific characteristics of the child, of parents, of the family and of the community environment that are thought to have an important impact on child outcomes such as the child's gender, parental drinking, prenting style, family dynamics and school climate and a range of child outcomes: and Child Development Outcomes which include studies to provide in-depth analysis of particular child outcomes, such as physical health, aggression, bullying and victimization, criminal offending, behaviour disorders, school readiness and school achievement; and Vulnerable Populations which include studies that will examine the particular characteristics and outcomes of children living in lone-parent families and of immigrant children. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Susan McKellar: (819) 953-4230, (819) 994-2480 susan.mckellar@spg.org	A	HRDC and Statistics Canada	4

Activity 2*: Relationship Violence a) Dating Violence Workshops and Presentations: Numerous dating violence workshops, presentations or classes took place across Canada. Over 100 "Train the Trainer" workshops and approx. 2000 individuals participated in workshops dealing with issues surrounding dating violence such as: responding to violence, Young Offenders Act, criminal code offenses, assault, peer counselling, court, healthy choices, the cycle of violence and prevention strategies.	A,B,C,D,E	Law Enforcement Agencies, Community Services Groups, Schools, Victims Services Agencies and Social Agencies	2
b) Youth Violence Projects Numerous Youth Violence Projects were funded. Examples include: 841-KOZ -This is a school based program which involved parents, police, educators, community agencies and local youth working together to develop strategies for the prevention of youth victimization and future involvement in crime. The program was developed by B.C. Community Justice Branch and Peace River invited this group to present to High Prairie School. Digby Youth Project MAGIC (Meetings Addressing Groups & Individuals in Conflict) - This program was implemented in Nova Scotia and provided training to 25 students from Grades 7-12 in peer leadership. Partners involved included the minor hockey league, MAGIC, Citizens Against Spousal Abuse and the RCMP. Western Communities Detachment Youth Violence Project - This program was developed as a result of the violent death of a 14 year old girl. The police, school officials and members of the community identified a need for a strategy to deal with youth violence. Venturers Workshop - This workshop provided training to 31 youth and advisors on strategies on how to effectively manage anger and resolve conflicts. It is based on the principle that the individuals trained will return to their communities and use these techniques both through the school system as well as within their families and communities to assist in resolving confrontational situations before they result in violence. Aboriginal Shield Program: Created to address the pressing need for culturally appropriate drug and alcohol prevention programs for Aboriginal youth. Its intent is to enable Aboriginal youth to better resist and to avoid making inappropriate choices regarding alcohol, drugs and other negative influences. This training program for police officers, peace keepers, community and youth workers, teachers and addictions counsellors has been delivered across Canada. Encounters with Canada: The Community, Contract and Aboriginal Policing Directorate sponsors 150 youth from across Canada ages 15 to 17 to participate in the Encounters with Canada program. The students come for 1 week and have numerous sessions dealing with dating violence, suicide prevention, drug awareness, victims of violence and other issues youth feel are important in their life. As a sub-theme to this week is the Commissioner's Forum where the youth have an opportunity to speak directly to the Commissioner and ask questions and provide possible solutions to issues regarding youth and policing. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Sgt. Statistics Canada
Activity:	Relation-ship to FVI key results (long-term impacts)	Partners	Funding Category
Activity 1*: Transition Home Survey The re-designed Transition Home Survey questionnaire addresses long-standing issues as well as emerging needs and priorities. The questionnaire and database will provide benefits in the form of relevant and timely information which are intended to contribute to policy and program development and an increased public awareness of family violence issues. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Cathy Trainor (613) 951-0646, (613) 951-6615, traicat@statcan.ca	A, D, E	federal departments, provincial departments	1
Activity 2*: Family Violence in Canada: A Statistical Profile 1998 This report summarizes current Statistics Canada data on the extent and nature of spousal violence, senior abuse, child abuse and homicides in the family. This report is designed to help governmental and non-governmental policy-makers identify emerging issues and monitor trends in family violence in Canada. It is further designed to contribute to public dialogue of family violence issues thus increasing public awareness. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Holly Johnson (613) 951-2065, (613) 951-6615, Johnhol@statcan.ca	A, D, E	federal departments, provincial departments	1

Activity 3: Enhancements to the General Social Survey on Victimization To enrich the analysis of the General Social Survey on Victimization, spousal and senior abuse modules were added. An expansion of the sample size will permit reliable national estimates of spousal and senior violence in the general population. Analysis and dissemination of the survey results will contribute to knowledge and awareness of family violence. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Cathy Trainor (613) 951-0646, (613)951-6615, traicat@statcan.ca	A, E	federal departments, provincial departments	2
Activity 4: Feasibility Study: Measuring Child Abuse through the National Longitudinal Survey on Children and Youth A feasibility report on measuring child abuse through the National Longitudinal Survey on Children and Youth (NLSCY) will be finalized in Summer, 1998. The feasibility report will contribute to current discussions regarding the methodological and ethical issues associated with surveying children about experiences of abuse, and may facilitate the development of statistically sound approaches to measuring child abuse. Contact person, phone, fax, e-mail: Holly Johnson (613) 951-2065, (613) 951-6615, Johnhol@statcan.ca	A , D	N/A	1
